The crowds who came went away to repeat this message. So the tidings were sarried far and wide, and the popularity of the preacher increased. A most salutary innuence was exerted by him upon the public life. Simers forsook the evil of their way and began to conduct themselves in accordance with the ethical teachings of Moses. Righteousness became the watchword of the hour, and John was the hope of the plous. With all this reform there spread the tidings. The Messlah, for whom Israel has existed, for whose coming the good had waited and prayed, was near. Expectation run high among the masses, who believed that their troubles would end, and fear was awakened among the rulers, who knew that their days were numbered. Ten came Jesus from Gallee to be baptized by John.

1016705E-(verses 13, 14, 15.) By some mysterious influence, not made known, John recognized his fluistrious visitor and healatted, through humility, to administer the ordinance, claiming that he should receive what he was asked to give. But desus urged and John consented. Why this request? It was not by confession of sin, for Jesus was sinless (John vill 18). It has been udged that the rite, and to establish relations between the reformer and the Messlah, or to put the sinless one in the sinner's place. Jesus gives a reason. It was to fulfill all righteousness. All priests in the Jewish Church were inducted to office by baptism (Ex. xxlv; 9) and inasnuch as Christ was a priest (Helv. vi9), it was proper that He should submit to this ceremonial, a formal right one of the property of the optimism of his career. Had not this been done there would have oeen a defect in the title of Jesus, which would have been an obstacle to his mission among the dews.

the title of Jesus, which would have been no obstacle to his mission among the Jews.

TESTIMONY,—(Verses 16 and 17.) The great purpose of the baptism was attained. The hatter and character of Jesus were attested by striking prenoment as He came up out of the water. The Holy Spirit in the form of a dove, the emblen of purity and gentleness, descended and lighted upon Him, visible both to Jesus and John. At the same time a voice from heaven declared, "This is my beloved son, in whom I am well picused," the form of the sentence indicating its source. The attending Spirit was seen but once in the life of Jesus, because it remained with Him. But the voice, uttering the same thing was heard. because if remained with Him. But the verce, uttering the same thing, was heard several times afterward. (Luke 1x:38.) Here were two Messianic predictions fulfilled—the gift of the Spirit as an abiding presence (1sa. xi:2), and the acknowledged sership, the deepest mystery of the Old Tessament (Psa. 1i:7), and the sublimest truth of the New Testament, (I Tim. iii: 15). After such heavenly testimony John was able to stand as a heraid to his generation, and fulfilled his mission in declaring that the Christ had actually come.

HUNGER—(Verses 1. 2. 4.) Immediately after San. At the outset of the rang it had been proved that a mere man might fail. Can the God-man resist temperature of the control of the con chief, thereby becoming vicegorout. The age-long struggle might thus have been terminated.

DISMISSAL—(Verse 10). The real issue was bluntly stated in the last solicitation. In the first and second, as well as in the third, Satun had sought surpremacy. Now that its motive is uncovered Josus deals with the last summary manner. Got two hence!" was the command. The office of the found spirit was a frensive and could not be longer controlled the world authority over no who proposed to clothe authority over no who proposed to clothe Him with authority. Jesus will some day possess all power, and he will rule the world as its rightful king, but this result when the summary and the world as its rightful king, but this result would not be read to the found on the saturation of the found the particular the world as its rightful king, but this result world another. MINISTRY—(Verse 1D, Satan retired, heavenly visitors appeared on the secie. Previously they had been present on important occasions (Luike, ht. 9), and subsequently they came when his interests were involved (Ch., xxviii; 2). But now they came to minister unto Him, a service which they offered to rightous men the first of satan change th

The Finance Committee will meet to night to begin work on the budget. The subcommittee on licenses will probably be ready to make a report at the next meeting of Council. This committee hepes to raise several thousand dollars in revenue from a revision of the license tax list.

The movement in the Legislature to restore to Manchester and other places the taxation on rolling stocks of railroads that was taken away by the Corporation Commission, has encouraged councilmen to feel that after all the city may not lose that taxation, which amounts to a little over $5,000 annually.

With this back upon the list the Street Committee hopes to get an increase on last year's appropriation or $7,000.

The Finance Committee is composed of men with the city's interest at heart, and they are expected to be as liberal in their appropriations as consistent with the income.

CUTICURA SOAP PRESIDENT UNDER FIRE

Mr. Newlands Declares He Has Committed an Act of War Against Colombia.

DEPEW PRAISES THE POLICY

Says It Is Patriotic and Justified by Precedent-Good Roads Are Discussed.

(By Associated Press.) . WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 14.-The Senate to-day listened to speeches by Mr. Newlands and Mr. Depaw, on the Panama Canal question, and to a speech by Mr. Latimer, in advocacy of the adoption of a plan for the improvement of the public wagon roads of the coun-

Mr. Newlands spoke in criticism of the course of the President in Panama, declaring that it was an act of war, and in contravention alike of the treaty of 1846, of international law, and of the claring that it was an act of war, and in contravention alike of the trenty of 1846, of international law, and of the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Depew, on the other hand, praised the President's policy as patriotic, and justified it under precedent and law. He reviewed the history of Panama, and detailed the facts connected with the negotiations of the Hay-Herran treaty, contending that Colombia had overreached herself in her rejection of that agreement.

The consideration of the Postoffice Department investigation resolution was postponed until next Monday.

GOOD ROADS.

In accordance with his previous notice, Mr. Latimer (South Carolina) discussed the subject of good roads. He based his remarks upon his own bill, providing a plan of co-operation between the national government and the various States for the improvement of the public roads. He salid that about one-third of our people, living in the country districts, bear the entire responsibility and cost of maintaining the common roads. He contended that this is an unjust discrimination against them and urged that the national government should bear a part of the burden.

Mr. Newlands, discussing the Panama question, salid it was doubtful whether the status, which existed before, could be restored. A new government had been created by the violent acts of the United States government. It would be difficult to compel again the surrender of the Isthmus and her people to the sovereignty of Colombia, involving possibly the punishment of her people for offenses, of which the United States government was itself guilty, but he insisted that "the honor of the United States demands prompt disavowal by the Congress of the United States, whose constitutional prerogative had been invaded, of the lawless and unconstitutional acts of the chief executive."

SOME COMPENSATION.

SOME COMPENSATION.

SOME COMPENSATION.

Such disavowal would mean compensation in some form, either the restoration of the thing taken or damages for its taking, to be surrendered either by mutual agreement through the form of a treaty of amilty, or by reference to some tribunal of arbitration, such as The Hague.

Mr. Spooner congratulated Mr. Newlards upon what he denominated as an espousal of the doctrine of international eminent domain in the last declaration of his speech in the interest of collective civilization. It was, he said, a recognition of the right to cut a way through the listmus for the purpose of wedding the two oceans, dependent only upon the payment of damages.

Mr. Depew spoke in support of the administration in its conduct in the listnums of Panama. After speaking of the importance of the canal, Mr. Depew said that the opponents of the treaty are aiding the enemies of the canal.

"If," he continued, "there has ever been a concert of action among any freat railway corporations to defeat this most beneficent work of commerce, and civilization, I am not aware of it; but if such a combination does exist, then its allies and its most efficient assistants are to be found among those who, under any device or excuse, are endeavoring to defeat the treaty with the Republic of Panama.

Whatever crittelsm may be made of this act, it cannot be said to be long, and in view of the one hundred and more escitons of the Illinois act, the description of the Virginia draft as 'a somewhat lengthy bill of fifty-rime sections' (Chicago Lesai News, November 21, 1903), is rather amusing. It is, indeed, a model of brevity. ### AT THE THEATRES.

"The Princess Chie" was favorably re-ceived at the Academy yesterday, the tuneful opera comique being presented, at as well as the orchestra, a fact worthy parts of the playhouse.

The opera is short, its three acts, including the intermissions, only "running." to uso the parlance of the stage, two have held the audience for more than thre; hours, "The Princess Chic" comes as a welcome relief. There may be even as a welcome relief. There may be even too much of a good thing. However, "The Princess Chic," meaning her highness individually, was not altogether as good as one might have wished. Miss vera Michelena, who sang the role, does not possess a voice of sufficient power to be impressive. Her work, as a whole, is larking in that quality which is probably best described by the word "strength." At no time is she very convincing. She does not exactly measure up to the standard required and expected of one cast in the leading role of an opera. With the exception of the male portion of the chorus, there were no voices that were above the average. The vocal work of the principals was not at all remarkable for excellence.

Themas C. Leary, as the steward, made a great deal of a comedy role that was constructed to conform with all the others of its type that have preceded it probable, for a quarter of a century. He did no part nobly, with the lines and business that tell to his 'ot, and furnished all of the humor of the plece, holing arrorded little assistance by the trio of comedians who were to help him with his burden.

The production was well mounted, and while it is not one that will be long re-
